Familiar Quotations

John Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, first published in 1855, is "a collection of passages, phrases and proverbs traced to their sources in ancient and modern literature." It is in a sense a tribute to the spoken word. The Tartan has borrowed that theme and applied it to the Covenant College community, capturing the things we say and recording them for all to see. The quotations you find in this book, some of them very familiar and some of them not, have been traced to their sources in the Covenant College community and beyond. We hope that you enjoy this book, and we pray that you find that even in the words we speak Christ is indeed pre-eminent.

"Covenant College. A tradition of excellence, . . . "

Students At War

During the 1990-1991 school year many dramatic events have taken place throughout the world, none more dramatic than the outbreak of war with Iraq. Tensions began to rise here at Covenant in August when news spread that the United States would send thousands of troops to Saudi Arabia to protect that country from invasion after the invasion of Kuwait. Tension turned to fear when it was learned that Dr. Jim Carroll, father of Covenant student John Carroll, was one of the hostages being held in the American embassy in Kuwait. Our prayer for Dr. Carroll was answered when he was released in December.

But our prayers did not cease, for by December three of our fellow students had been called out of the reserves to go to the Middle East. There is hardly a student here who does not have a close friend or family member serving in the Gulf. This war has indeed struck close to home. By February the six Covenant students you see pictured on these pages had been called to leave school to go into active duty, either here in the States or in the Middle East. The prayers of the entire Covenant College community go out to these six as well as all our other soldiers and leaders. May God truly be with you.

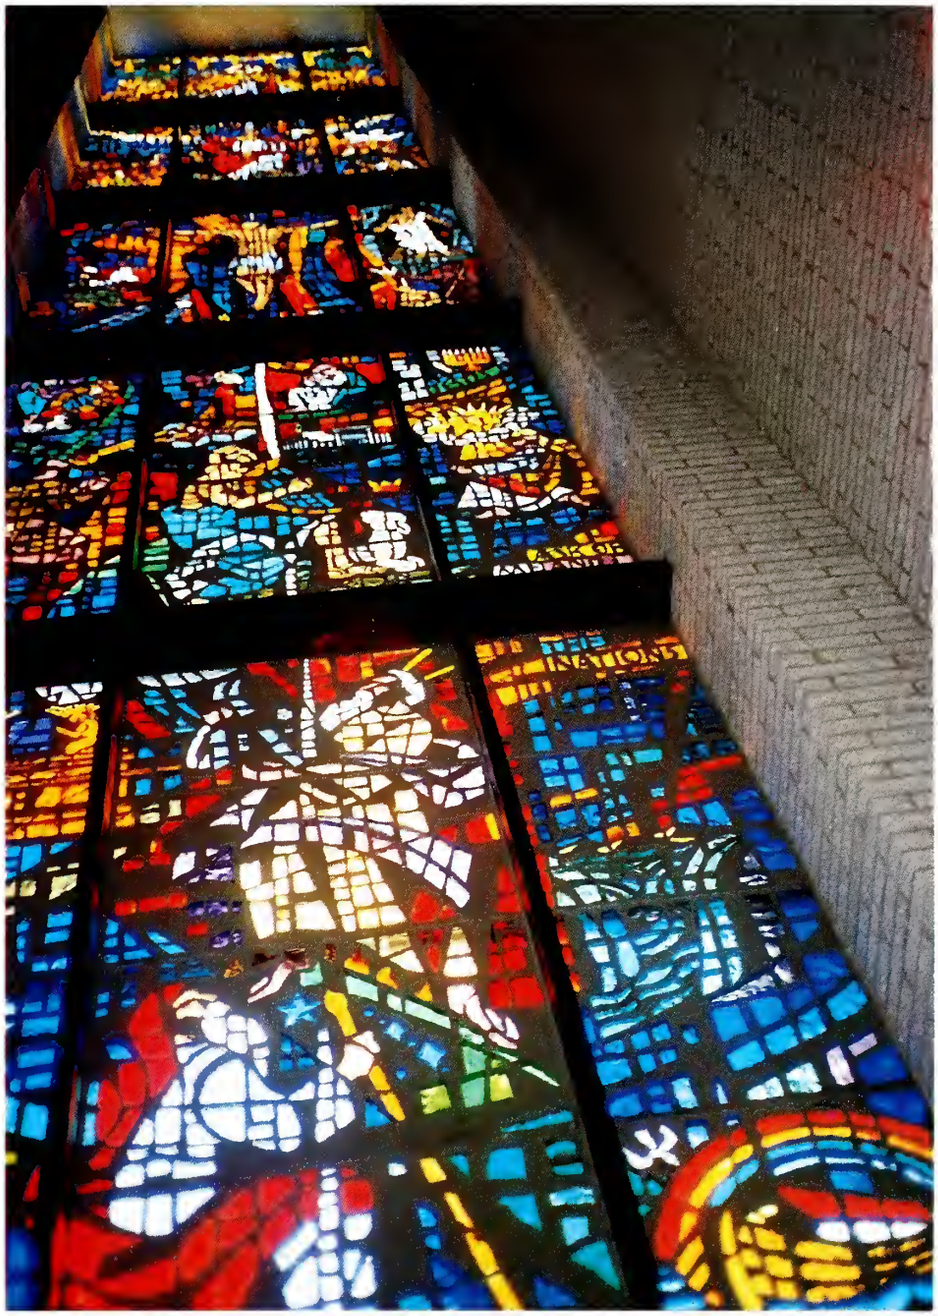
"In part, I'm justified in saying that Covenant provides an excellent education because it has graduated many competent Christian leaders. This kind of education is provided to all Covenant students, but as in all education, Covenant students must give a certain kind and amount of effort in learning. Thus Covenant educates strong Christian leaders only if its students are eager and willing to become strong Christian leaders."
— Alan Fiol, on how good a job Covenant does at training future Christian leaders



"This is how God showed his love among us: He sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him. This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins."

Schmidt Wing Construction

The 1990-1991 school year saw the first new building completed on our campus in several years. Ground was broken for Schmidt Wing, an addition to Belz Hall, in October of 1989. Construction of the new dorm brought many headaches and rude awakenings to the sound of bulldozers and jackhammers for the men of Belz Hall. But by November, 1990, the building was ready for the first group of women, who had been crowded into commons of Carter Hall for the first part of the semester, to move into Fourth Schmidt. Third Schmidt opened as a women's hall at the beginning of the Spring semester, and Second Schmidt will not be occupied until next Fall.

The new dorm contains housing for 75 students and includes a large game room, a television room, a main lobby, and a new Resident Director's apartment for R.D. Krue Brock and his wife, Hollee. The building is named for Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Schmidt, both of whom have worked at Covenant since it was founded in 1956. Rudy, currently Dean of Records, has registered every student who has ever attended Covenant College. Collyn, currently working with BEST, has held several positions throughout her years of service here. The Schmidts, who are retiring after this year, will be missed, and the naming of this new dorm after them is a fitting honor.

Orientation '90

"The way the whole week was designed made it easier for the incoming freshmen because we were able to develop friends among ourselves before the upperclassmen got here.
— Jennifer Gladwin

"The neatest part was the last night on the volleyball court when we were tied together and we burned the things we didn't want to be a part of our lives anymore."
— Wendy Lee

"The confidence course made me realize that Mark Erickson is a great ladder!"
— Mary McCampbell

Genesis '90, Covenant's orientation week for incoming freshmen, holds many memories for this year's new students. For many it was the trauma of leaving home for the first time. For others it was the fear of cruel professors and impossible classes. But the freshmen came prepared. Many brought what seemed to be every one of their earthly possessions, and parents and upperclassmen helped them move their belongings into the dorms. Roommates met for the first time and new friendships were formed. The class was divided into small groups and tackled the confidence course and performed skits and shared with one another. All of this helped the newcomers build new relationships and develop trust and unify the class.

"The freshmen were very willing to be involved with the orientation activities. Also, there were more upperclassmen and staff that were there to help the new students adjust to college life."
— Scott Raymond

"The small groups were good, but I didn't like taking all the placement tests."
— Tracy Van Enk

"Most memorable were the weird hijinx pulled by Scott Raymond such as breaking a mirror in chapel and tying us all together."
— John Bulten

THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING.....

GENESIS 1990

"I was very grateful that there were people there to help me move my things to my room. I couldn't have done it myself!"
— Stephanie Slater

"We love our freshmen, but we'd love them even more if they didn't bring so much stuff."
— Anonymous

"The confidence course made our small groups come together and gave us a sense of unity."
— Heidi Hinkson

Student leaders Darrell Brooks and Karen Duven welcome freshman Janette Tucker to Covenant.

"The confidence course brought us closer together and got us to think about trusting the friends we'd been making."
— Jeff Malcomson

"My date even had the car to match the part; we felt like the Dukes of Hazzard."
— Michelle Reinink

"Leighann Myers refills her cup as she takes a break from square dancing.

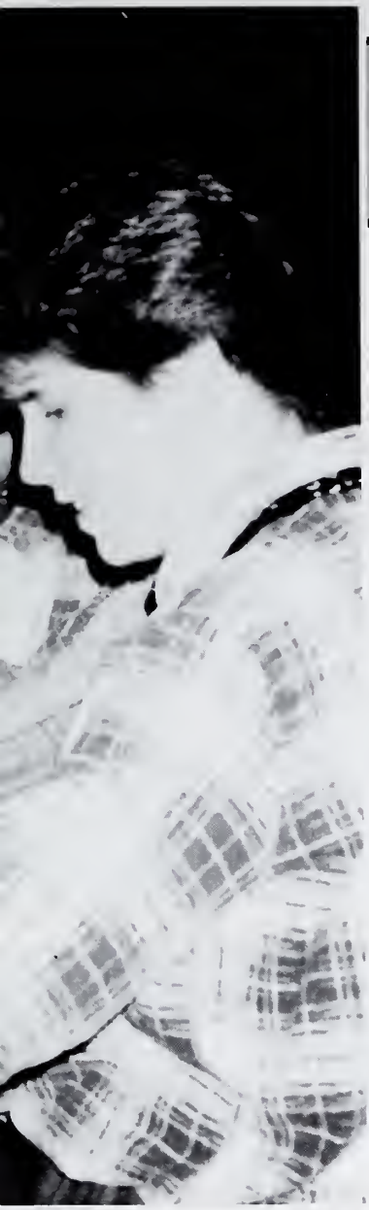
— Theresa Tucker, on Robby Holt and Crissy Orthner's costumes

"It was the most fun I've had since I've been at Covenant. Being outside made it even more fun. I loved it!"
— Stephanie Acker



Kilter Night

"The idea of a square dance sounded corny, but it turned out to be a lot of fun."
— Britt Polski

"I thought the farm was romantic."
— Michelle Beland

"I was hoping the pig Mr. Anderson had to kiss would be bigger, but otherwise I had a really good time because everyone, including the Brocks, loosened up at the dance."
— Brant Huisman"

"This is my first year at Covenant so it gave me the opportunity to get to know lots of pepole since the dance mixed everyone up."
— Sean Lynch

"Alaman left your corner and do-si-do your partner." These were common instructions heard during the Kilter Night square dance. Mr. Chuck Anderson called the dance and the Dismembered Tennesseeans accompanied him. In spite of an earlier rain, the dance was held at a nearby farm which set the mood. In addition to square dancing, there was a root beer chugging contest and a three-legged race, as well as a kiss-the-pig contest, in which Chaplain Chuck got to smooch a swine.

"I think Chuck Anderson did a really good job, considering nobody had a clue as to what they were doing."
— Elizabeth York

"I really enjoyed how we got to know more people than just our date. Plus, we could mess up and have fun with it."
— Deanna Dilley

"It was an awesome evening. The bonfire added to it and it was just nippy enough to make it perfect."
— Jill Graham

"Sean Elzinga, in spite of his age, is able to enjoy a good hoedown as much as anyone."
— Ed Sunder

"It was absolutely incredible. I liked the tractor and horses. Chaplain Chuck made everyone feel like pros."
— Katie Wagle, with Clint Wilkie, Stacy UpDeGraff, Jae Jaquinta, Tom Hilgers, and Lance Edling

Homecoming

"It was great to see a lot of my old friends again."
— Alumnus Tom Hilgers

"I'm glad that the alumni saw fit to honor the Schmidts. It is indeed a well-deserved honor and a fitting recognition of all they have done for the college. All of us at Covenant will miss Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt when they retire."
— David Lattner

October 19 marked the beginning of homecoming weekend. The visiting alumni and current students alike were treated to many special events. On Friday night there were the traditional Alumni vs. Varsity men's and women's basketball games, followed by an ice cream social and topped off by Ray Dameron's comedy hour. On Saturday morning the cross-country team held their first annual Homecoming Invitational, losing by a narrow margin to North Georgia College. The soccer team lost their homecoming game to a tough Tusculum team for only their second loss of the season. On Saturday night Mrs. Collyn Schmidt was given honorary alumna status, and she and her husband Rudy were named Alumni of the Year in honor of their retirement after many years of service to Covenant College.

"There were a lot more fun things to do this year that had students and alumni interacting."
— Heidi Maxim

"Incorporating student and alumni activities was a great idea."
— Tracy Van Enk

"Eddie Salter sure hasn't lost his touch"
— Anonymous

"I thought it was hilarious!"
— Shannon Quinn on Mr. Dameron's comedy hour

"Krue Brock's interpretive dance in the talent portion definitely helped him win the Homecoming Queen contest."
— Dave Peterson

"I think the parade idea has potential. Marshal Rowe (Alumni Director) is doing a good job."
— Beth Christian, on covenant's first annual Homecoming Parade.

"I loved the parade!"
— Bill MacDonald

"The basketball games were really good."
— Jared Cooper, on the Alumni vs. Varsity games. (Maggie Farley and alumna Sharon Mudd shown)

"It was an excellent concert. Glad used their voices to praise God and sing to the Lord. I was impressed by their love."
— Steve Benson

"The sound was great. They have great talent. I really enjoyed Glad's concert."
— Scarlet McClung

"A mighty fortress is our God, a bulwark never failing."

Glad Concert

"Remember the feeling you get at the circus when the man walked across the tightrope? The slightest twitch and . . . The acapella sound of Glad is that way. To see five guys sing in perfect harmony feels the same way."

— Dan Gilchrist

"Even my dad liked it!"

— Rory Ramsey

Glad, a contemporary Christian group that is always popular on our campus, returned on October 30 to perform. The quintet entertained us with songs off of their 2 latest acapella albums. Ed Nalle, the group's founder and lead singer, led the quintet's beautiful harmonies in renditions of great hymns such as "Just as I am" and "A Mighty Fortress". Nalle also spoke of Compassion International, an organization concerned with feeding starving people throughout the world. The evening was as much a service of worship as a concert, and the members of Glad reminded us all that the only reason they were singing was because Jesus Christ had risen from the dead.

"The concert was spiritually uplifting and I felt like God was glorified through the singing."

— Lisa Anderson

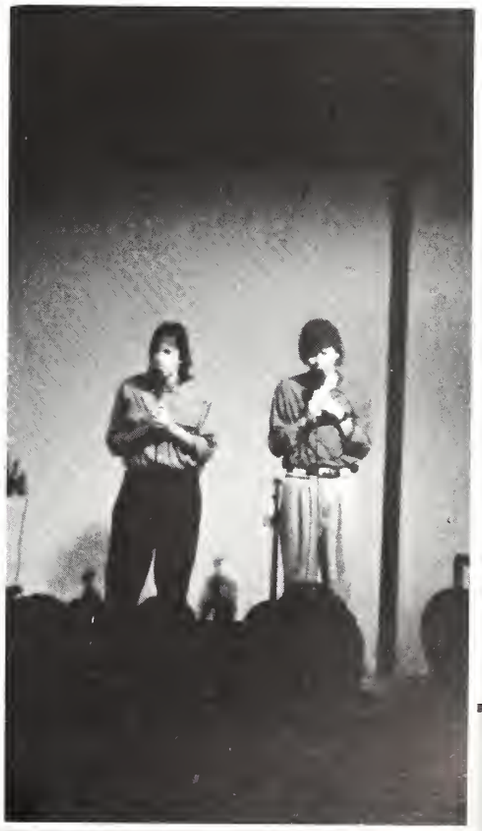
"People that I didn't even know could carry a tune were singing acapella together after these guys came."

— Greg Volpitto

"It was one of the most edifying concerts I've ever been to, because they were really seeking to lead us in worship."

— Nathan Trice

"He is risen, Hallelujah!", Glad proclaimed in their music.



"Amazing love, how can it be
That you, my God, should die for me."
— Chorus, "And Can It Be"

Campus Preview Weekend

"Christ is preeminent at Covenant. I felt very comfortable there."
— Anonymous Ceewee

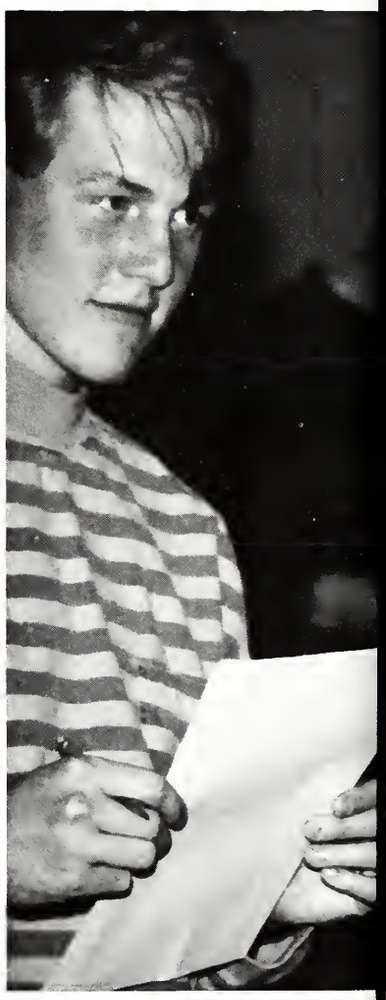
"I enjoyed being able to talk to the professors."
— Amy Pierce, Ceewee

"It was great. I thought the people were really nice."
— Zephani Flippin, Ceewee

High school students from all over the country again descended upon our humble campus this year in November and February for Campus Preview Weekends. The visitors, more or less affectionately referred to as Ceewees, were able to visit classes, talk to professors, and live in the dorms for a night or two. The admissions staff also made every effort to ensure that the Ceewees enjoyed their stay. First semester James Ward gave a concert. Second semester Steve Bigger gave a concert along with the New City Choir. Hopefully, we will see many of this year's visitors back next year as Covenant College freshmen.

"I enjoyed campus Preview Weekend a lot. It was really fun."
— Ellen Govan, Ceewee

"The students in Carter Hall were a little too wild for me."
— Anonymous Ceewee



"I thought the concert was great. It was a nice chance to relax."
— Anonymous CeeWee

Madrigals

Head wench Bill English presents the Boar's Head to the Lord.

"Madrigals was everything I expected it to be. The food was especially great. I enjoyed it much more than most people, of course, because this year I sang in the Madrigals group."

— Lara Henderson

"I enjoyed Madrigals because the atmosphere was very elegant, and the entertainment of the singers and instrumentalists was outstanding."

— Michelle Kesserling

"It gets better every year. How can they top this one?!"

— Jared Kylan

The most outstanding tradition at Covenant each year is the Madrigal Dinner, and this year was no exception. The Great Hall is transformed into a Medieval manor house, and a wonderful seven course meal is served to all guests by the Lord and Lady of the manor. Throughout the meal, guests are entertained by jesters, the Madrigal brass choir, recorder player Tom Mosser, soloist Steve Lawton, and of course the Madrigal singers.

Every year the Madrigal Dinners are the perfect way for members and friends of the Covenant community to begin the Christmas season.

"Madrigals may be enjoyable to go to, but it infinitely more satisfying to sing in the Madrigals. That is where the true enjoyment is."

— Bethany Kauffman

"It's a journey back in time to experience the sights, sounds, and smells of Christmas in old England."

— Rob Thacker

Jester Bill Higgins entertains the guests.

Libby Buisson Concert

"I thought it was proof that just because you're young doesn't mean that you can't go anywhere. She's got a beautiful voice!"

— Jared Kylan

"Just what the world needs . . . a Christian Tiffany."

— Ed Sunder

Early second semester C.A.B. introduced us to a new young Christian singer by the name of Libby Buisson. She used prerecorded background music, but that did not detract from the quality of her singing. Judging from the reactions of many Covenant students, Libby has a promising future in Christian music. Of course, some of Libby's admirers weren't interested solely in her music. As Stacey UpDeGraff said, "My favorite part was watching the guys in the front row swoon over Libby."

"I thought Libby was really good. She's got her own style and she'll probably make it."

— Rob Rowton

P.I.D. Concert

This Spring, in an attempt to diversify the types of entertainment brought to campus, C.A.B. brought the rap group P.I.D., Preachers in Disguise, to do a concert. The concert was well-attended by people from the community. P.I.D.'s dancing was a hit, and overall the concert was a success.

"Rap music is amazingly popular today, so I suppose I'm glad that there are Christian rap groups like P.I.D. who try to use rap to promote the Gospel."
— David Lattner

"I'm glad to see C.A.B. trying to bring in different types of entertainment like P.I.D. to fit the differing tastes of Covenant's students."
— Debbi Scott

Spring Banquet

"... On with the dance! let joy be unconfined;
No sleep till morn, when Youth and Pleasure meet
To Chase the glowing hours with flying feet."
— Lord Byron, from "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage"

The Read House was the place to be the night of April 5, as that was the location of the annual Spring Banquet put on by the Campus Activities Board. The theme was the Roaring Twenties, and many came dressed to fit the part. Girls in Flappers, the Charleston, and a live jazz band featuring our own Charles Henderson all helped set the mood. We ate, drank, and danced the night away!

Jared Kylan and Tressa Coverdale enjoy dancing to the sounds of the live jazz band.

"I found it extremely disappointing and discouraging that the college's students and faculty were so inappreciative of the effort and time the music students put into this concert. It was one of the best concerts ever offered on Covenant's campus and those who didn't attend missed out on an excellent performance."
— Kai Larrison

"I really enjoyed playing in a large group. I feel this was the best concert performance at Covenant since I've been here."
— Lori Weeks

On April 11 Covenant's music department, with the help of several area musicians, put on a wonderful concert of classical and twentieth century music. The full orchestra, conducted by Dr. Bob Monroe, played works by Schubert, Stravinsky, Handel, and others, and the Covenant Chorale sang several pieces as well. Highlights of the concert included a beautiful performance of "Brother James' Air" and Schubert's "Symphony No. 8 in B Minor". As a finale, the musicians helped us to remember our soldiers still serving in the Middle East by performing a stirring choral rendition of "From Sea to Shining Sea."

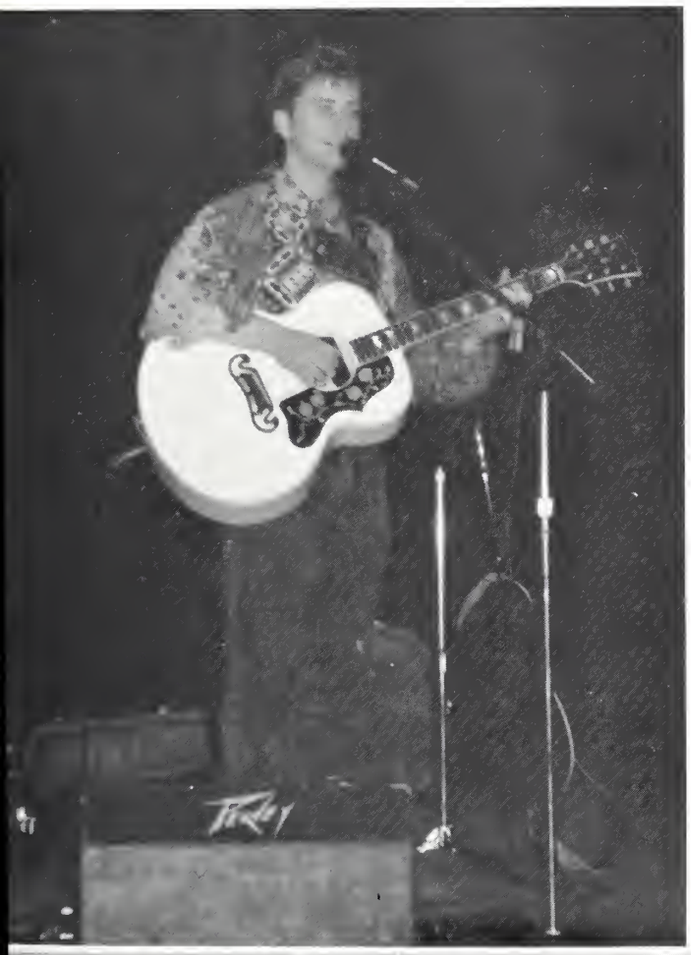
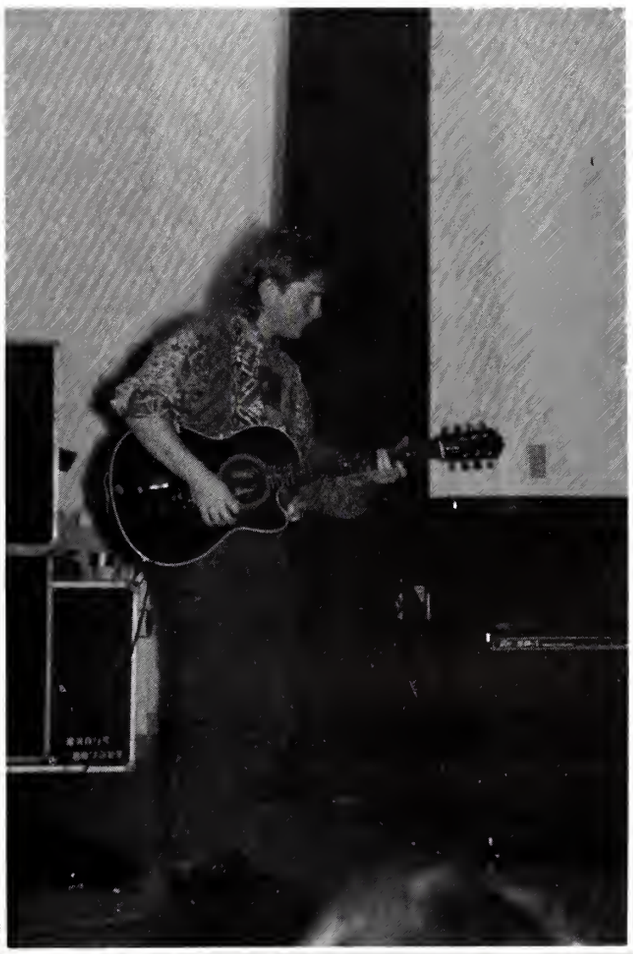
Wes King Concert

Covenant alum Wes King returned to campus this Spring to perform his most recently produced music. King's sense of humor and excellent guitar playing helped to make the concert a success, and his music is becoming increasingly popular throughout the country. We look forward to hearing more from him as his career continues to blossom.





A Man For All Seasons

"They wonder much to hear that gold, which in itself is so useless a thing, should be everywhere so much esteemed, that even men for whom it was made, and by whom it has its value, should yet be thought of less value than it is."

Sir Thomas More,
Utopia, 1516

A Man For All Seasons is a play based on the life of Sir Thomas More, the Chancellor of England in the early sixteenth century. The story focusses on his struggle with King Henry VIII and Thomas Cromwell over the matter of Henry's divorce from Catherine. The story is intense and moving, and the cast, directed by Lara Henderson, did a superb job of capturing the emotions of the characters. The in-the-round seating of the Great Hall stage helped the audience to feel the power of the words. This was a beautifully performed play.

"The play was very intense and kept me in suspense. The actors did a good job."

— Renee Cross

"Great people to work with. Terrific actors, a wonderful director. I'll never forget them."

— Kevin Masrud

Spring Madrigals

For the second year in a row, on April 20, the Madrigal singers put on a Spring performance in addition to their traditional Christmas performances. The theme of this year's program was the music of Tin Pan Alley. Under the direction of Dr. John Hamm, the singers began the night with a medly of American folk music covering every period of American history. The rest of the evening's program was narrated by Rabbi Kenneth Kanter, a local authority on Tin Pan Alley music. The selections included many well-known numbers, such as "Baby Face," "Oh! You Beautiful Doll," and a tribute to the music of Cole Porter. The evening concluded with a medly of songs by Irving Berlin, ending with the audience joining the singers in "God Bless America."

"I get no kick from champagne.
Mere alcohol doesn't thrill me at all,
So tell me why should it be true
That I get a kick out of you."
— Cole Porter

"God Bless America,
Land that I love.
Stand beside her,
And guide her
Through the night,
With a light,
From above.
From the mountains to the prairies,
To the oceans white with foam,
God bless America,
My home sweet home!"
— Irving Berlin

Faculty Follies

Our own faculty barbershop quartet, featuring Mr. Dameron, Dr. Lambert, Mr. Pinner, and Dr. Graham, serenades Missy Cash.

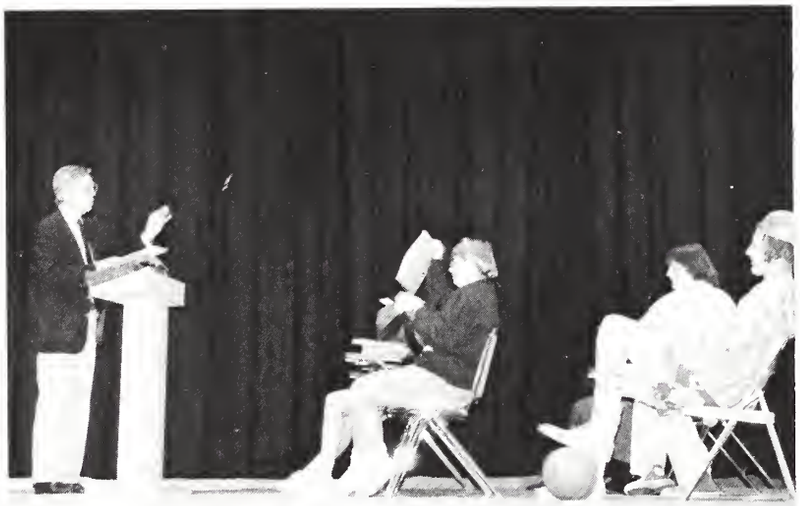
"It was wonderful to see the faculty in a totally new light."
— Kim Woodard

"The last skit (with President Brock) inspired me to go to Las Vegas — Hi, Gambler!"
— Julia Smith

"Len Teague was quite a ham!"
— Renea Marshall

"Crossman's group was the best!"
— Debbie Neuhoff

Only an event which promised that faculty members would totally humilitate themselves could have drawn such a packed house to the Sanderson auditorium. And indeed, the Faculty Follies lived up to that promise. Who could forget the sight of Mrs. Schmidt dressed as a grape and dancing to "I heard it through the grapevine"? Or Dr. Wenger's famous bird impressions? Or Dr. Barker's English students? Or Mr. Crossman's skit poking fun at Mr. Brock, ARA, the fire department, and our beloved Mrs. Lyon? Indeed, many students were quite surprised to see the crazy side of our distinguished faculty.



Dr. Barker's class — a typical Covenant class?!

Dr. Wenger's famous impressions of birds in flight.

Len Teague and President Brock in the hilarious Arcade sketch.

Exam Cram

During the week of Spring finals, in the midst of the most serious and determined period of studying for most Covenant students, RDs Paul Warren and Krue Brock decided to hold a spontaneous talent show as part of the regular exam cram meal and entertainment. The show featured a wide variety and degree of talent, but the hands-down winner was definitely a rendition of "All for Jesus" done by Clint Wilkie, John Hake, Ben Wikner, and Greg Volpitto to the tune of "In the Jungle". Other highlights were Danny Steele's Christmas and Easter raps, and the Seven Dwarfs. Preceding the talent show was a concert by Covenant's newest band, The Shakes.

Graduation

"Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord to Thee.
Take my moments and my days; Let them flow in ceaseless praise.

Take my hands and let them move at the impulse of thy love.
Take my feet, and let them be swift and beautiful for thee.

Take my silver and my gold; Not a mite would I withhold.
Take my intellect, and use every power as thou shalt choose.

Take my will, and make it thine; It shall be no longer mine.
Take my heart, it is thine own; It shall be thy royal throne.

Take my love; my Lord, I pour at thy feet its treasure — store.
Take myself, and I will be ever, only, all for Thee."

May 4 was a day for beginnings and endings for the Class of 1991 — the end of their lives as Covenant College students and the beginning of their lives as Covenant College alumni. Commencement this year was in the lovely Tivoli theater in downtown Chattanooga, as the administration decided that there was too little indoor seating on campus for graduation if the weather was inclement. So as the rain poured down outside, inside the bagpiper led the procession of faculty and graduates into the theater.

The commencement address was given by the Honorable Bill Brock, former United States Senator, a Reagan administration Cabinet member, and the brother of our own President Frank Brock. Student testimonies were given by Ann Thompson, Nathan Trice, and QUEST student Teresa Draper, and Dr. Hoover gave the charge to the graduates. Degrees were awarded to 55 traditional and 35 QUEST students. Congratulations to all of our graduates.

The year of 1990-1991 strikes me as being one of the most eventful and challenging years at Covenant for a while. All of us returned to Covenant in the fall with a feeling of uneasiness about the developments in the Persian Gulf, and it soon became clear as we watched the news that war with Iraq was a real threat. Even as some of our own reservists were being called up, there was much talk at Covenant as to the moral questions of the coming war, and many of us were unsure of the answers.

Yet things at Covenant continued much as before. Early on, the old issues of check cashing, student parking, and the phone system were raised again with the obligatory response from the Senate, and some immediate improvements were made with at least the first two. Construction on the new wing of Belz Hall, now "Founders Residence", was finished, with the third floor receiving tenants half way through the semester. In a letter to the Bagpipe, Dr. McLelland challenged the student body to exercise themselves more in careful Christian thinking, and some lively exchanges ensued. And the Senate among other things held a couple of Open Forums which were memorable in several ways, and filled the prematurely vacated positions of both Spiritual Affairs and Sophomore Class President.

Early in the spring semester the war commenced in the Gulf with the start of bombing on Iraq. The Senate first heard the news during one of its long budget meetings, and students in the next few weeks gave much closer attention to the news, either on the TV that was put in the Great Hall or elsewhere. Some wore yellow ribbons, a yellow bow was kept at the front of the chapel, and many students made the war the focus of prayer meetings.

Then the Staley lecturer, Dr. Mary Stewart Van Leeuwen, created no small amount of "cognitive dissonance" among the Covenant community with her lectures on the subject of gender roles. Long after her departure the issues continued to be debated on the Wittenburg door, in the Bagpipe, in chapel, and in many classroom and dinner-table discussions. Faculty and students alike were divided in their evaluation of her argument against male headship in the church and home.

The Board of Trustees also met again in the spring, and this time with much greater exposure to students and their thoughts. In an informal evening session, members of the Board heard concerns from many different students about chapel, student discipline, college maintenance, and the issues raised by Van Leeuwen. The input was well received by the Board, and both students and Board members were encouraged by the precedent of direct dialogue. Some action has already been taken in response to the issues raised, including a comprehensive review by the administration of the student discipline process.

The whole campus was gladdened by the news in late February that a cease-fire to the war had been called — so soon, and with apparently so few Allied forces lost. Friends and relatives had been spared, and though the violence continued within Iraq, we were eventually able to see our reservists returning to Covenant, where they were greeted with a lot of hugs and back-slapping.

And the Senate was busy about its work: making a set of recommendations to Student Development concerning the selection of RAs, preparing an extensive set of revisions for the Student Association constitution to be proposed to the students, planning and following up the Board meeting with students, and responding in measured ways to both the war in the Gulf and the Van Leeuwen controversy. Its last responsibility, of course, was to hold elections for the 1991-92 Senate, and to train the new Senate-elect for its positions.

As the year closed, a couple other events left the college community sobered and somewhat humbled. Tony Campolo spoke to us in chapel, and rather powerfully confronted us with the responsibility of having Kingdom concerns outside of those narrowly personal and self-serving. Some of us were effected profoundly by his message, and resolved again to "give no thought for ourselves," but for others. Then not long after that we received word that Mrs. Heddendorf had died suddenly, and our concerns were directed to that family, and in grieving with them. The Lord seemed to want to teach some of us more of a biblically selfless outlook.

The year at Covenant was unique, in my judgment, for lesser reasons as well which cannot all be mentioned. We seemed to be especially challenged this year at Covenant through the various circumstances that arose, and the result seemed to be a more reflective, thinking student body. I know that I was particularly challenged this year. The position of Student Senate President was both highly demanding and exceedingly rewarding. The Senate had an unusual amount of solidarity this year, and genuine fellowship within it, and this made our time together productive and a lot of fun too.

I charge the student body not to despise the day of small things, to "think small" if necessary, but to strive with each step toward greater unity and growth at Covenant that will take us closer to our goal — the preeminence of Christ in all things. Don't be satisfied with merely meeting the minimum requirements of being a student at Covenant. Covenant College has little to offer the person disinterested in thinking and growing as a Christian. Rather, seek to be those who are characteristically eager to learn the mind of Christ, and to be stretched by an education that brings more than just intellectual growth. I am aware of a great deal of change that has occurred in me in four years, and I can see the same thing happening in many others. By God's grace, that maturing change will continue in many of you, and this eventful, memorable year will be only the step to an even better one next year.

CAB & Class Presidents

The Campus Activities Board, chaired by Dawn Brady, was responsible for most of the social events of the year, including Kilter Night and Spring Banquet, as well as movies and concerts that were brought on campus. CAB did a good job of providing us with a wide variety of entertainment.

The presidents of each of the four classes were all busy planning social events and other class activities, and the upperclass presidents had the additional responsibility of helping to organize graduation-related activities. In addition, all presidents represented their classes as members of Senate

Education Club

New on campus this year was the Education Club, sponsored by the Education Department and open to all students in the Teacher Education program. The club had social events and offered help to those who desire to be teachers in the future.

Psi Chi

Psi Chi is the national psychology honor society. Debbie Ellis was president of Covenant's Psi Chi chapter this year. The group was involved in service projects in Chattanooga like the Special Olympics, and also attended psychology conferences and helped tutor beginning psychology students.

Psi Chi: Rebecca Baker, Sandy Hamada, Debbie Ellis, J'Lane Peterson, Shari Kullmar, Cindy Brown, Pat Rolleston, Stephanie Law, Elizabeth York

Business Club

Covenant's Business Club was quite active this year. The club was able to talk with several area business leaders and hold discussions on major issues in the business world. One highlight was the club's trip to Nashville.

Bagpipe

The Bagpipe, Covenant's student newspaper, took on a new look again this year as the magazine format was dropped in favor of the traditional newspaper style. Kathy Swink and Brian Maynor were co-editors. The Bagpipe introduced a fine arts section this year in addition to improving its news, sports, political, and editorial sections.

Tartan

The staff of the Tartan worked very hard this year to produce a quality yearbook. A major obstacle, and an unforeseen one, was the loss of Photo Editor Dave Peterson when he was called into active duty during the war. Rob Rowton filled that position skillfully second semester. Editor David Lattner and Assistant Editor Heidi Maxim had a fun and faithful staff with which to work, and we are pleased to be able to present Covenant College with this book.

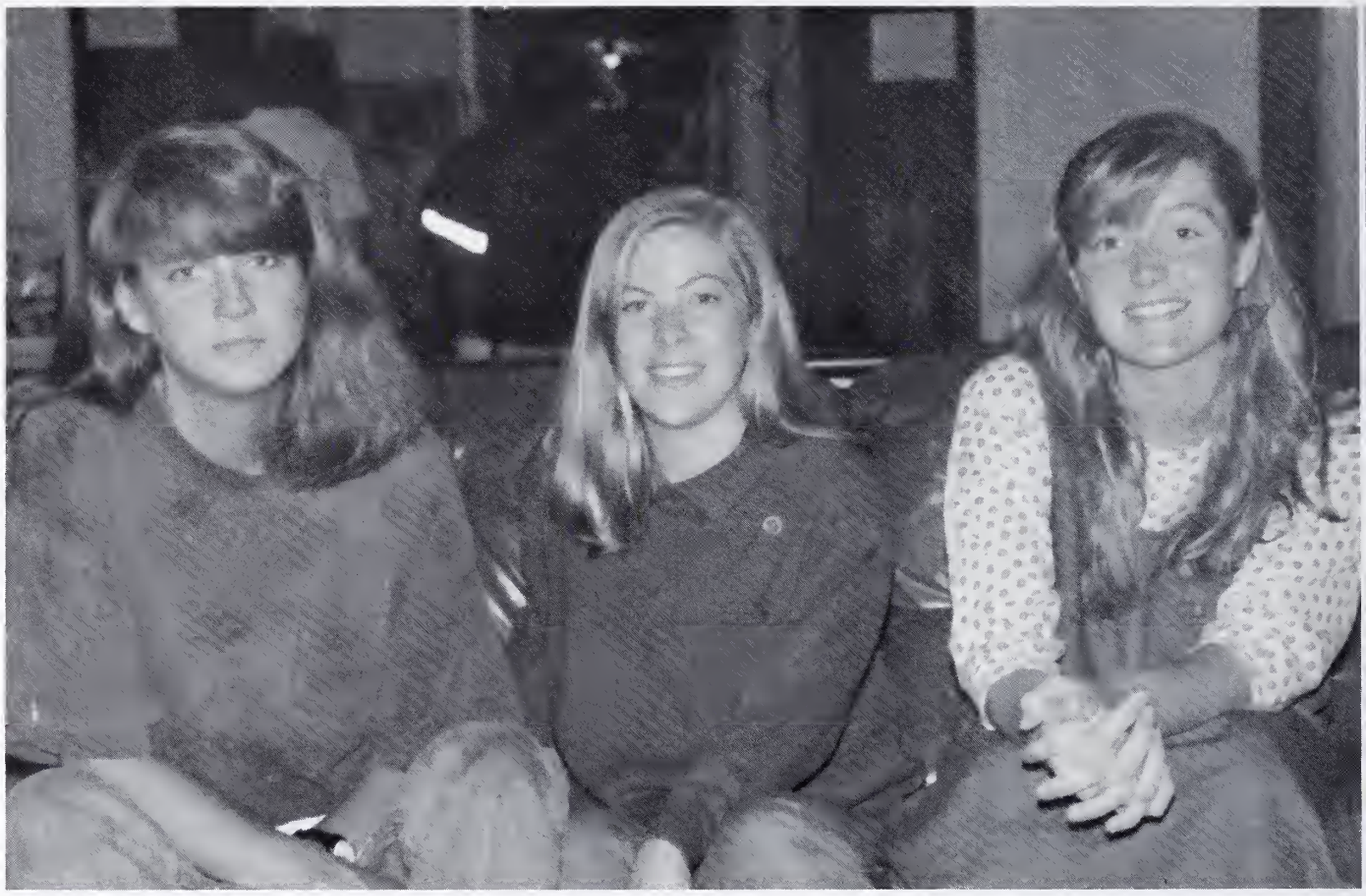
Thorn

The Thorn is the literary magazine of Covenant College and includes poetry, short stories and art work by Covenant students and faculty. This year Editor Jane McCallum published two volumes of the Thorn, one each semester, and the quality of the magazine was the best it's been in several years.



Thorn Staff: Rachel Ferguson, Jane McCallum, Hollee Brock

Chorale

The Covenant College Chorale has long had a reputation for excellence, and this year was no exception. Under the skillful direction of Dr. John Hamm and accompanied by Mr. David Friberg, the Chorale performed throughout the year in churches, the Spring Thistle concert, the Commencement concert, and various other places. The highlight of the year was the annual tour during Spring Break, this year to Florida, where the Chorale performed in several churches, helping to proclaim the glory of God through their music.

Inner-City Ministry

Every Saturday afternoon, the members of the Inner-city Ministry head down into the middle of Chattanooga, gather all the children they can from the neighborhood, and have a Bible club with games, singing, snacks, and a Bible story. The members of this ministry are actively involved in spreading the Gospel to the children of these inner-city neighborhoods.

Widow & Prison Ministries

The Widows' Ministry this year was involved in several service projects to help out some needy women, and also spent time just getting to know and spending time with these women.

The Prison Ministry this year became involved with the new Ex-offender ministry being started in Chattanooga and helped to get that organization's office running, in addition to being involved with contact work with area prisoners.

Cheerleaders

This year's cheerleading squad was young and full of energy, with Captain Stephanie Acker as the only cheerleader returning from last year's squad. They added much to the basketball games in the way of enthusiasm and helped to get the crowd into the games and cheer the Scots on to victory.

Cheerleaders: Back: Kim Wallis, Jinny Morris, Shawnea Walker, Alison Skaggs Front: Heidi Hinkson, Aimee Conrad, Stephanie Acker, Liz Johnson

Baseball Club

Covenant's die-hard baseball fans got together again this year to form the Baseball Club. Although they didn't play any real games, they enjoyed practicing and we all join them in wishing for a return of intercollegiate baseball here at Covenant.

Women's Soccer Club

The Women's Soccer Club was very active this year, participating in several intercollegiate indoor and outdoor tournaments and matches, and did quite well against some older and more experienced teams. The club was coached by Sean McDaniel, and the Athletic Department is considering the possibility of making women's soccer a varsity sport next year.

Soccer

The 1990 soccer Scots had a tremendous season, compiling a 20-3 record, the best in Covenant soccer history, and capturing the NAIA District 24 title. Led by high scorer Jimmy Weekley and seniors Sean McDaniel, Andy Robinson, and John Arnett, the Scots put together a 17 game winning streak after losing their first game to Berry College. Highlights of the season included big wins over Christian Brothers, King, University of the South, Taylor, and Tennessee Temple, and Tusculum in the district final. The Scots' defense was held together all season by tough play from Andy Robinson, Juniors Patrick Winecoff and Mark McManus, sophomore John Barber, and keeper John Arnett. The high-powered offense was sparked by the amazing play of Jimmy Weekley, with help from Sean McDaniel, sophomore Aaron Clark, and Mark Duble. Congratulations to Coach Crossman and the soccer Scots for a great season.

"I'm so proud of the soccer team. It's one of the great things about Covenant. Eleventh in the nation — incredible!"
— President Brock, on Mark Duble, shown here, and the rest of the 1990 soccer Scots

"They work together well. It's like they're a bunch of brothers — not a clique. It's a strength of theirs."
— Wendy Hummel

"I think they're doing great. Good team. Brian Crossman is a master of making a team work well together to an accomplished goal."

Volleyball

The 1990 season was one of new beginnings for the Lady Scots volleyball team. The team was comprised of lots of new players, with the young team consisting of four freshmen, four sophomores, and only one junior, Lenore Berard. There was also a new coach — Mari Lajara Salter, a 1988 graduate of Covenant. As the season progressed, the women gained experience and learned to work well together. The Lady Scots were led by strong play from Jeanie Huisman, Jennifer Nelson, Theresa and Janette Tucker, Deanna Dilley, and newcomers Laurie Conrad, Debbie Neuhoff, and Sharlene Burkett. Players feel that this year has provided a solid base on which to build for the future. Covenant fans have much to look forward to for next season and seasons to come.

Cross Country

Cross country runners are insane." That is a common saying among those of us Covenant students who try to rationalize being terribly out of shape. Well, maybe Covenant's cross country runners are insane. After all, they do run as many as ten miles every day in practice in all kinds of weather and like it. But the runners are also dedicated and understand the meaning of the word perseverance. This season marked the first year the team actually got to run a meet at home, the Homecoming Invitational. In that meet Paul Nakhla was beaten by less than one second by a North Georgia runner for first place. J'Lane Peterson qualified for the national NAIA race in Ohio but was unable to attend. Wendy Hummell was also one of the strongest runners for the ladies' team. The men's team was led by Paula Nakhla, John Hurley, Clint Wilkie and Marc Erickson. With only a few upperclassmen not returning, the cross country team looks forward to an even stronger season next year.

"It's better to look good than to feel good."
— Clint Wilkie"

"Steve Thomas is a bit fruity, but he's a great coach."
— John Hurley

"What a determined group! Anyone who runs up and down hills for 5 miles in 40-degree weather with only shorts and a t-shirt on has got to be determined or absolutely out of their mind."
— Debbi Scott, on runners like J'Lane Peterson, who demonstrates running up one of those hills.

"And they're off!" But will they all finish? Would a cross country runner ever consider stopping in the middle of a race? "Death first!", says John Hurley.

The women runners from Covenant and North Georgia congregate at the starting line before the Homecoming run.

Men's Basketball

The Scots had another tough year in basketball this season, finishing a disappointing 8-23. The young team lost a few players midway through the season, but also picked up two of their most exciting players midseason. Freshman Eddy Hilger, who also plays varsity soccer, joined the team and added some needed spark to the team at the guard position, and QUEST student Jeff Harp, a 6'7" forward, added height and a great deal of scoring from the inside. The Scots' steadiest players were team high-scorer David Wilding, a 6'6" center who transferred to Covenant this year, and team captain Tommy Brown, a sophomore forward. The team has several talented players and shows signs of promise, and will hopefully be able to put together a winning season next year.

Forward Tommy Brown puts the ball up strong for two points.

Women's Basketball

The Lady Scots surprised a lot of people this season, spending most of the season with a record above .500, and finishing with a record of 14-19. The Lady Scots had only one player older than a sophomore, junior Jill Blankenship. The rest of the team was made up entirely of freshmen and sophomores. Team captain Johanna Compton led the team in scoring, and was supported well by starters Stephanie Law, Maggie Farley, Susan Milam, and Tiffany Painter. Highlights of the season included defeating rival Tennessee Temple, and losing the championship game of the Economy Handa Tournament in the final seconds against Anderson University. The team will return with all its players, and the unity and teamwork the ladies showed this season will only be stronger next season.

Julie Stokes gives Johanna Compton some advice during a timeout in a Lady Scots' game.

Theresa Tucker soars in for a lay-up.

Men's Football

The early-morning dew. The smack of pigskin against human hands. Male bonding. The adoration of female fans. For those who participated in the covenant Intramural Football League this fall there were many reasons to wake up early on Saturday mornings. This year five teams competed: Tang, the Stingers, Heads Will Roll, Penthouse, and the J Walkers. In the palyoffs, Tang upset the Stingers to advance to the semifinals against the J Walkers, the Penthouse faced Heads Will Roll. Penthouse, last year's champs, beat heads Will Roll 14-13 in a tight game, and the J Walkers defeated Tang handily, 34-21. But in the championship game it was no contest as the J Walkers walked all over Penthouse, 34-0, claiming the CIFL title. At the end of the season the J Walkers played in a tournament against teams from Tennessee Temple, Lee, and Bryan Colleges.

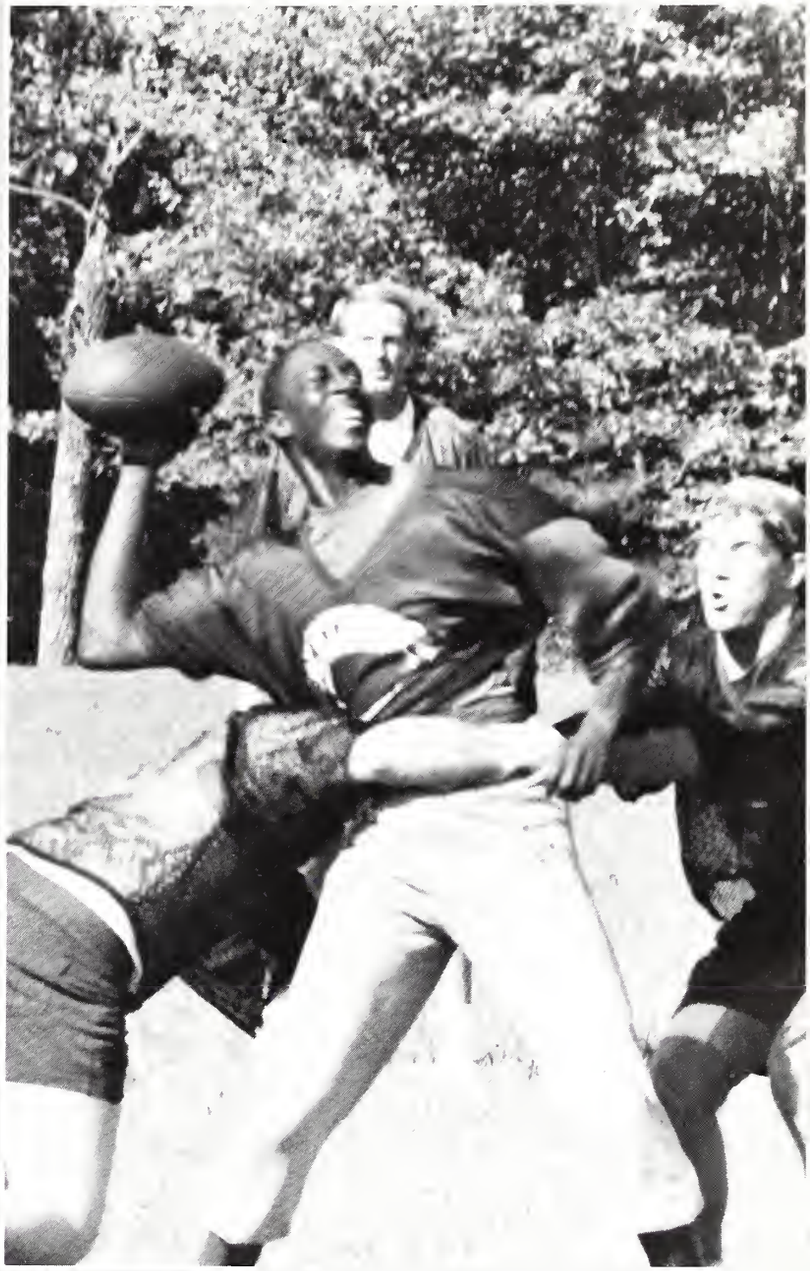
"Blitz!!!" The Stingers rush in against Penthouse.

Steve Wolery watches the action intently from the sideline.

"It's a chance for college men to act like children."
— Scott Scruggs, on intramural football players like John Carroll, shown here

"Winning isn't everything, but it sure is fun."
— That's easy for Jay to say. His team won.

"You've got to love football to get up and play at 8:00 in the morning."
— Marvin Williams must love it as he searches for a hole during an early-morning game.



"There were some very hard-hitting games, especially for flag football."
— Eddie Salter experiences this statement first-hand.

Women's Football

Again this year the women of each of the four classes formed intramural football teams to participate in the Covenant Intramural Football League. In the playoffs the undefeated Juniors played the last-ranked Seniors and won 21-0. In the other semi-final game the Freshmen played the Sophomores. The Sophomores came out on top in a close game, 16-8 to put them in the final against the Juniors. In the championship game the Juniors took the lead with a second-half touchdown by Kai Larrison, making the score 7-0. But with just 30 seconds left in the game, sophomore Kathy Swink ran the ball in for a touchdown. The Sophomores attempted a 2-point conversion, but the Juniors stopped them and won the game 7-6, making them the Women's intramural champs.

"We learned a lot and had good teamwork. I had a great time."

— Anonymous

"The girls games were like the guys' games in slow motion."
- An anonymous male, on Dana Curnow and the rest of the women football players

The Sophomores line up against the Juniors on the line of scrimmage.

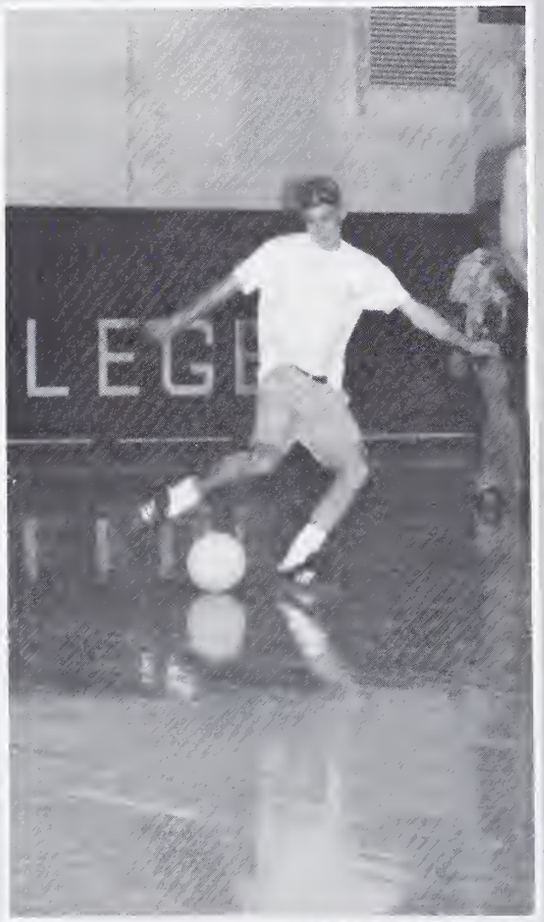
Men's Soccer

Due to varsity men's and women's basketball practices having top priority in gym scheduling, intramural soccer games often didn't start until ten or eleven at night. But there were still plenty of people who were willing to put off their studies another couple of hours to participate in indoor soccer. The games were always fast and furious, not to mention physical. As Dave Glenn described his attitude about intramural soccer, "I just got to hack people to death and have fun doing it." The final game featured Billy Britt's team and the Return of the Toxic Pregnant Yaks. Britt's team won the championship game by the score of 2-1 with a goal in sudden-death overtime by Nevin Mawhinney.

Jeff Malcomson tries to stop his opponent from advancing the ball.



Matt Pinner sends the ball towards the opposing goal.

Women's Soccer

Cheryl Gruver and Jill Scoggins work together to move the ball closer to the goal.

Vicious, intense, violent, fun. These were all words used to describe women's intramural soccer this year. For a non-contact sport, soccer proved to be a quiet physical game in the ladies' league. The two teams that survived to the finals were Sean McDaniel's team and Oh, Shoot, I Missed Again (OSIMA), a team made up of alumnae mostly. Dianne Elzinga scored both goals in the championship game and goalie Gale Pink shut out OSIMA, making the final score 2-0 and making McDaniel's team the champions. Jimmy Weekley summed up the season, "It was fun to coach and watch because the girls were having fun. That's what intramurals are all about — not so serious, just having fun."

OSIMA's goalie pounces on the ball during the ladies' championship game

"Violent" is how Sarah Davis described the season, as shown here by Suzi Dumper and Jane McCallum preparing to collide.

Theresa Davoulas looks to pass as she moves the ball up court.

Dianne Elzinga sets up for one of her two goals in the championship game.

Men's Basketball

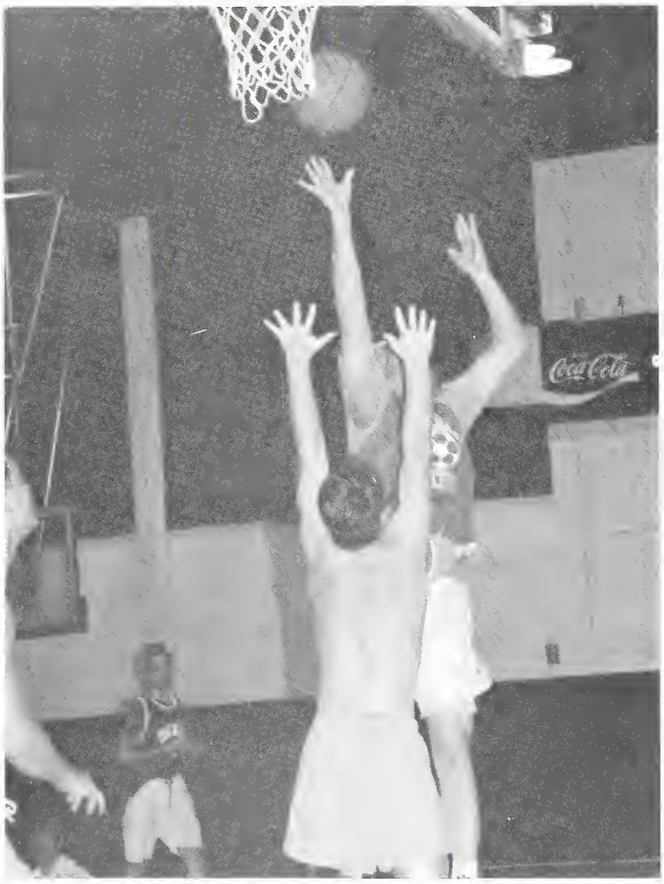
It seems as if everybody at Covenant played intramural basketball this year, as 16 teams were fielded in two conferences. The Ghetto ended up supplying the two teams that competed for the championship. Down With That, led by Mark Duble, Patrick Winecoff, and Aaron Clark, played Rutti Tutti Fresh and Fruity Get on the Floor and Bust that Bootie, featuring Pat Wallin, Andrew Conrad, Craig McMahon, and Derek Halvorson. Down With That won the final game 46-31, thus proving that soccer players can also play basketball pretty well and becoming the 1991 intramural basketball champions.

Andrew Conrad of Rutti Tutti puts up a shot over Aaron Clark of Down With That.

Mark Duble shoots a free throw in the championship game.

"To sum up intramural basketball you could use the three d's: Desire, Determination, and Dedication. This intramural team was pump up and air out."
— Craig McMahon

"Basketball was a lot of fun, and I enjoyed participating on a team where we could all have fun and still be competitive."
— Patrick Winecoff



Mark Duble shoots over younger brother Troy in the heated championship game.

Women's Basketball

Thirteen teams participated in women's intramural basketball this year, by far the most ever. The teams ranged from quite serious to just for fun, but all the women who played had a good time. In the championship game, OSIMA, (Oh, Shoot, I Missed Again), a team made up of alumnae and other non-students, defeated Call 911 handily, 34-10, thus finishing undefeated. Even the teams who didn't win a game all year played hard, and the large number of women who played was encouraging.

"It was vicious!", said Gale Pink of intramural basketball, and Kris Warthan finds that out as she is swarmed by her defenders.

Paul Warren checks the scoreboard during his wife's game.

Dianne Elzinga shoots over the outstretched arms of Bonnie Smith.

Peg Brock of Call 911 dribbles in against a member of OSIMA in the championship game.

Leda Camak goes in for an uncontested lay-up.

Anamarie Pratt tries for two.

"It was a good way to get frustration out," said Elizabeth York, as Debbie Scott prepares to unload some frustration on Dianne Elzinga.

The President's Message

The graduates of the Class of 1991 are completing college at a time of great uncertainty and rapid change. East-West conflict, which dominated most of this century, will be for you a vague memory. I pray that the war in Iraq and floundering economy do not presage the future. But the one thing that seems almost certain is the constancy of change. It has been our prayer that a Christ-centered education in a rigorous academic environment would prepare you to serve effectively and live responsibly in such a rapidly changing world.

As you look back on your college years, I am sure you will have many pleasant memories, and I would urge you to think about the things that made them so pleasant: your personal relationship to Christ, close friends with whom you could share commitments and dreams, time for reflection, and a sense of mission and purpose. Often the college years represent carefree abandonment from reality, and graduates who have become adults foolishly try to behave as though they were irresponsible youth.

But you have been taught a better and more excellent way, a way that endures. Yes, there will be struggles and hardship, but what truly brought joy to your life here at Covenant can endure throughout your life by God's grace. I pray that you will never forget your dependence upon Him in the years ahead.

The first dream — a coolie;
Then a cook.
But college? — ??
Now a graduate!
And if it's still coolie or cook
Tis your deliberate choice within a world of opportunity —
And God's call.
Congratulations!
Mom and Dad

John Arnett

John, thanks be to God! For you . . . your efforts and accomplishments. For Covenant College . . . those serving Him there. May the '91 Scots serve our Savior faithfully.
